HANDFUL OF MEN STAND OFF REBEL ARMY AND SUSTAIN THEIR TRADITIONS

Citizens of Escuinapa Boast that They Have Never Surrendered Not Even When Their Town Was Burned. and This Time They Whipped the Rebels Even After Their Ammunition Was Gone—Axes and Fishing Harpoons Their Weapons.

Mazatlan, Sinaloa, Mexico, May 18.—(By Mail.)—Details of the fighting at Escuinapa are leaking through. This is a little town about two days on a mule down the Southern Pacific railroad track, toward Tepic, the last town of any size before crossing the Coahuila river into Tepic. It is the heart of the town, which lives off a scant farming zone, a little stock raising and a season of fishing, shrimp and oyster, much dried shrimp being exported to San Francisco for Chinese consumption, that its boys of 12 and 13 years, although it was burned three times by the hands of Lazaro, the famous Tiger of America, during the Maximilian regime. Its people always fought to the death and they cherish their fighting traditions.

Seven Rebel Seventy. On the morning of the 2nd, about 70 rebels were seen approaching the town. The leader of the local guard went out to meet them with all his available force—at that hour seven men—and took an advantageous position, and opened fire when the rebels got in easy range. Three rebels were killed and two captured with two horses, a mule and a pack animal. The rebels had "Viva Orozco," "Viva Zapata," "Viva Vasquez Gomez" on their flags. The other rebels ran as usual.

In the afternoon about 200 rebels approached, and the local force, augmented to a total of 10 cavalry and 18 infantry, the latter led by a cold drink peddler and his two boys, and both sides used dynamite bombs. In the throwing of which the little lads found good sport.

Twenty-two Rebels Killed. Gacho killed one rebel with his dagger and this rebel's carbine and a number of cartridges were a valuable addition to the defenders' equipment. The rebels ran after two and one half hours of fighting in which the local force killed 20 rebels and captured 10. The rebels were dragged off by their comrades, and the local force, augmented by 100 men, divided into three columns, entered the town from the north, south and east, and they had them and adopted the position of a cross, and threw the rebels into the air and in a few seconds the rebels were all dead.

Slender of Rebels. In ghostly silence this operation was repeated at other houses until some 14 rebels were put out of commission, and the good work was still going on when about midnight the rebel outposts gave the alarm of an attack. The military column of Gen. Ojeda, which arrived by forced marches after routing the rebels at Rosario, and the federal forces entering from different directions spread panic among the looking hordes and only a few rebels were seen. The rebels were scattered in all directions, and the defenders, holding their moxie weapons under their blankets, mixed among them and worked their way to the last house, and then they began to lay about them and in a few seconds the rebels were all dead.

Corpses Are Buried. All the corpses were gathered up and were buried with petroleum and turned on the 4th. Some federal deserters were recognized among the dead.

On the morning of the 5th, Gen. Ojeda's battalion withdrew to Rosario, and all of Escuinapa that could afford to ride went along in 30 cars and carriages and the others on horses or on foot, to leave their town as vacant. The next day Gen. Ojeda sent back a force of about 100, including "Gacho" and his doughty boys, to beat the brush around Escuinapa and chase the remnants of the rebel band into the hills. This force was led by a humble tailor

Only Strong Leader the Rebels Had, Who Might Have Controlled Them, Is Executed by Weak Leaders Jealous of Him, Who Are Forced to Flee From the Horrors of Their Own Doing. Women and Young Girls Outraged.

Cullacan, Sinaloa, May 13.—(By Mail.)—Cullacan, a small town, 15 miles from Mazatlan, Sinaloa, was the scene of a terrible massacre during the past year. It was very close to the border of the state of Sinaloa, and the period from the 22d to the 25th of April.

Pilar Quintana. "The terrible man of the revolution," because of the very ambition that invited his death at the hands of the other leaders and not from any principle of honor or vestige of conscience, exercised a powerful influence to the time of his killing to prevent the looting of the city, and only after it was known that his terrible presence had vanished, did the death of the rebels take place.

Strong Leader Executed. During the massacre, his killing he had asserted his right to the leadership of all the rebels so boldly and had shown such consummate daring in crossing the river and attacking the other leaders, some of whom brought in a greater number of men than he did, and he had shown such consummate daring in crossing the river and attacking the other leaders, some of whom brought in a greater number of men than he did, and he had shown such consummate daring in crossing the river and attacking the other leaders, some of whom brought in a greater number of men than he did.

Weak Leaders Flee. Antonio Franco and Manuel Vega, the two who had been the most vigorous in opposing Pilar Quintana in his claim to supreme command, both having been killed, the rebels were left without a leader, and they were forced to flee from the city.

The Government Saved. The rebels had been in the city for some time, and they had been causing much trouble to the government. The government had been very anxious to get them out of the city, and they had been causing much trouble to the government.

Rebels Arrested; Federals Are Not. Tom Lea Says United States Is Not Treating Both Sides Alike.

Tom Lea is sore. His ruffled feeling is the result of the persistent reports which arise in El Paso regarding the recruiting of men for the federal force at Ojinaga and other points along the border.

ter he died the death of a common criminal, struggling to break out from the hands of his executioners and jump over the rail of the bridge into the river, and thus escape the hands of his executioners. Some of his men had been disarmed and imprisoned at the time he was captured and the others were being sent to the front lines.

the owners of which took advantage of the absence of any authority to make them pay for the privilege, and the lack of police to restrain them, up in the small hours of the morning with dead and wounded on the scene. Some of the government employees were in hiding in the city and away from their dark retreats during the 12 days the rebels held sway.

Another Governor. Don Manuel Clouthier was appointed governor of Sinaloa the 16th, but he is not expected to do more than add one more to the long string that have enjoyed this honor in the past year. The people have lost the count and do not know whether he is 13 or 14.

Madrista recruits which have been flooding over to the rebels in whole companies and battalions are being absorbed in small numbers, and distributed in small numbers, in the hope that the stern discipline of the service will make soldiers of them or at least prevent their treason on the march.

Families whose fathers and sons were killed fighting in the rebel ranks are being treated as the common run of merchants and government employees. Furniture, crockery, glassware, which was formerly the property of the families, is being sold to pieces to gratify the lust for destruction.

Suffering of Women. The starved and boys who figured so gloriously in the preparations for the defense of their beloved city, and who were the first to be killed, are now being treated as the common run of merchants and government employees.

Exodus of Americans. The Mexicans are greatly alarmed over the continued exodus of Americans and consider the present trip of the United States transport "Buford" evidence of a quickly maturing plan for intervention. As a rule their only distrust of intervention is the fear that some national territory would ultimately be lopped off. Most of those who own property, have families, or are living by honest toil, desire intervention at any cost, and the subject is always brought into any conversation with foreigners, but it is a general hope that intervention would mean a military occupation in force sufficient to quickly pacify the country and the administration of government for some years until the mass of the people can be brought out of their apathy, when they hope the Americans will withdraw and leave Mexico intact.

Advances of Huerta. The place was surrounded and held out. There were 25 Americans there. To Ojinaga, which was appealed to the president for troops, assurance was given that 200 rurales would be sent at once.

Soldiers of company B, 13th infantry, arrested Nicolas Lodrigio at Washington park Sunday night with five rifles in his possession. The man was tried to be making an effort to cross the river with the guns, which were wrapped in burial. He was delivered to the federal authorities and a complaint charging him with attempting to smuggle arms to Mexico will be filed against him in the United States commissioner's court.

EARNINGS FELL OF PAST YEAR

Amount of Slump $175,500,000—Corporate Report Made Public.

Washington, D. C., May 20.—Corporate earnings in the United States decreased $175,500,000 in 1911. That figure represents the comparative loss in net earnings as reported to Royal E. Cabell, commissioner of internal revenue, for making assessment under the corporation excise tax law.

SANTA FE HAS 190 CASES AGAINST IT Tombstone, Ariz., May 20.—There are 190 complaints against the Santa Fe railroad company to be tried in the United States district court at this place during the session which commences May 28. The cases are of the nature of those which have been filed in the past year.

The gross receipts of corporations did not suffer as great a ratio of decrease as the net. The returns indicate, the commissioner points out, that this was because labor and supply men shared more largely in the receipts of the companies in 1911 than in 1910. This was particularly so in the case of the railroad, he says, which seems to have paid increased amounts for labor without a corresponding increase in income being indicated, in many cases an actual decrease in income being shown.

Assessment Due In June. The 1 percent assessment on the 1911 net earnings of corporations will turn into the federal treasury about $28,278,000, most of which will be paid in June, against $29,432,000 last year, a decrease of $1,154,000. The amount probably will be augmented somewhat before the close of the fiscal year, Mr. Cabell says, bringing the decrease below $1,000,000. Considering business conditions in 1911,
